Convocation Opens New Year

He encouraged them to get to know some of their professors as well as fellow students. But perhaps most important of all, Michael Morris, professor of psychology, told incoming students, "Get to know yourself."

With a touch of whimsy and sage advice from one who has long been affiliated with academia both as a student and a professor, Morris, extending greetings to the class of 1996 on behalf of the UNH faculty, spoke directly to UNH's newest charges, who gathered under a sunny sky on the Maxcy Hall quad the afternoon of September 1 for the university's second Convocation. Faculty and staff donned their academic regalia for the occasion, and video cameras rolled as President Lawrence J. DeNardis took center stage and presented the University Award for Distinguished Teaching to Tara L'Heureux-Barrett, assistant professor of psychology.

and the University Adjunct Award for Distinguished Teaching to Pauline M. Schwartz, who teaches in the School of Engineering chemistry department. Later, Brenda Williams, associate provost for students' academic development and enrollment management, presented Outstanding Staff Member and Service Employee awards to Paul Stankowski, electrical technician in the School of Engineering, and Maureen Chase who operates the Central Duplicating Office.

But the day focused largely on incoming freshman and transfer students. The Presidential and Humphrey Scholars were recognized as were the graduate fellows. The newest members of the UNH family also received hearty greetings from the Day Student Government, the Board of Governors and Provost James Uebelacker, who also served as master of ceremonies.

Strategic Plan Unveiled Publicly

Some describe it as embodying a new way of thinking. Others see it as a blueprint for the future. Purists deem it simply an action plan.

Whatever the frame of reference, one thing is certain. The university's Strategic Plan, which was publicly unveiled for the first time in August, has already garnered the attention of university constituents and others interested in the educational arena.

The 44-page plan, the culmination of a two-year effort involving input from all sectors within the university community, stresses key elements crucial to the university's future.

Central to the university's heralded Students First philosophy, the plan envisions a university that "will strive to achieve prominent and distinctive leadership as an institution that empowers students with substantive knowledge, the ability to communicate, problem-solving skills, and the practical experience appropriate for success as leaders in their professions and as citizens of the local and world communities."

In short, the plan concerns educating the "whole" person and preparing students for life's encounters. To that end, the plan calls for ensuring quality academic preparation, top-flight institutional management, continued financial stability and revenue growth, and student comfort, enjoyment, productivity and safety. Also key are plans for an expanded UNH with multiple campuses and continued beautification efforts on the main campus.

Already, implementation of the plan is well underway, says President Lawrence J. DeNardis, who, as part of his first year at the helm of the university, initiated the final planning process. Now in his second year as president, DeNardis, along with the university's Board of Governors, is making that fine-tuned plan a reality.

New School, New Programs

Addressing the need for quality academic opportunities, the President announced the formation of a new School for Public Safety and Professional Studies this September. Headed by Acting Dean R.E. Gaenssen, director and professor of forensic science, the school consolidates the university's many respected specialty programs: aviation, criminal justice, fire science, forensic science, occupational safety and health, and paralegal studies.

The university also announced plans to develop three new academic programs designed to enhance and expand offerings in the health and human services disciplines. The programs, offering a B.S. degree in dental hygiene and M.S. degrees in human nutrition and education, are currently pending licensure. Under review is a B.A. in music industry, which would complement existing programs. The Graduate School's degree offerings also were expanded.

Integral to its academic strength is the university's globalization efforts. This fall, the university welcomed 12 Siberian students from the Kuzbass region of Russia and 45 Israeli students (see related articles Summer Insight 1992 and this issue on page 7), bringing the total number of foreign students currently enrolled at UNH to approximately 560. In addition, the university continues to attract visiting professors from other countries, such as Fulbright Scholar Stefan Samko (see related story on page 7).

The president has also instituted several organizational changes and appointments. A new vice president for university advancement, Donald Ihnsen, was appointed with responsibility for the Development, Alumni Relations and Public Relations offices. The creation of the new post and the organizational restructuring it represents follow recommendations in the Strategic Plan. Additional changes include the promotion of former assistant provost Brenda Williams to associate provost with expanded responsibilities for enrollment management; the naming of Ira Kleinfeld, previously chair of the Department of Industrial Engineering, to be assistant provost for external operations; and the selection of Oliver Porter to serve as outreach assistant to the Provost.

Campus Physical Plant Addressed

The university's plans to expand in the Groton/New London area have drawn considerable attention in the media. Currently, the university is examining several possible sites for a permanent campus for the 1,000 students pursuing degrees at UNH's Southeastern branch. University officials also hope to address the need for retraining defense industry workers in that area.

Meanwhile, a three-phase campus beautification program is well underway. New brick entryways, the revamped Maxcy Hall portico and the recently completed Admissions Building, housing the university's undergraduate admissions and financial aid personnel, were part of the initial phase. Now plans are in the works to construct recreational and athletic fields adjacent to the upperclass residence halls as well as an Alumni and Friends Walkway to Success that will begin at the Admissions Building and, ultimately, join a number of buildings on campus. Funding for both projects is the focus of the recently announced Greening of UNH Campaign.

"I am both pleased and excited about the opportunities that lie ahead for our university and about the progress that we have made so far," says President DeNardis, crediting the university community's support as instrumental to the implementation process. "As we continue to phase in recommendations of our Strategic Plan, I think the future of the university, and, more important, that of our students, will only continue to grow and prosper."

Undergrad Enrollments Top 600 Mark

Six hundred plus. That's a popular figure on campus these days, ever since the Undergraduate Admissions Office tallied the number of the university's incoming class this fall. The entering class is more than 10 percent larger than last year, when freshmen and transfers numbered 523 students. All told, the university has some 1,550 undergraduate students, up from just under 1,400 in fall 1991.

In a time of declining enrollments nationwide, the news is particularly heartening, says Steve Briggs, dean of undergraduate admissions and financial aid.

"We've concentrated our efforts, expanding our recruiting outreach, offering more opportunities to bring perspective students and their parents to campus, and working more closely with guidance counselors," says Briggs. He believes, too, that assistance from faculty, student tour guides, staff and alumni have made a difference in recruiting efforts.

Freshmen students found newly painted and revamped quarters awaited them in the Freshman Residence Hall, one of the several facilities projects that was undertaken over the summer.

Overall, the new students represent a cross-section of 19 states as well as the Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

The group is also diversified internationally; the university welcomed students from 24 countries. Midge Burnette, director of international student admissions, notes that this year UNH has students from countries such as the Netherlands and South Africa, which have not previously been represented at UNH. She adds that countries such as Bangladesh, Greece, Iceland, Morocco, Spain, Turkey and Canada have in the past sent "only a student here and there, so it is exciting to see students coming this fall from these countries as well."

Also adding to the university's growing cosmopolitan flavor are 12 Siberian students from the Kuzbass region of Russia, 45 new Israeli students who are working toward a variety of engineering degrees (the university welcomed 70 Israeli students last year), and a sizeable number of Korean students.

While traditional programs continue to be big draws as major areas of study, the most noticeable growth appears to be in such programs as criminal justice, engineering, environmental science, fire science, music and sound recording and the management of sports industries, one of the university's newest degree programs.

The UNH College Connection Program

Developing Student Potential/Sampling College Life

They were all interested in attending UNH. They all had potential for college-level work. But they needed a little help honing their academic skills. This summer they found the help they needed through the university's unique College Connection Program, which also afforded them a taste of college life UNH-style.

Some 14 students from New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Vermont and Rhode Island participated in the program, which stresses mathematics and language arts skills. Students had the opportunity to live in the residence halls and participate in social activities. They also were encouraged to seek additional help through the university's Center for Learning Resources, a popular and busy office during the academic year.

Program Coordinator Donald Fridshal, who is professor and chair of the Department of Mathematics, notes that, since the program was first introduced last year, both the number of students and the geographical range has grown, a factor he credits largely to the Admissions Office's intensified recruiting. He notes, too, that in efforts to assist students who have the potential to succeed in college but for one reason or another may be deficient in a particular area, the program was expanded to include both provisionally and conditionally accepted students.

Of the students who completed the program, all are currently enrolled at UNH. As an offshoot of the program, all will be carefully monitored throughout their freshman year to ensure their continued success, says Fridshal.

In his presidential address, President DeNardis highlighted what the university offers students in the way of a quality academic experience that combines the best of both worlds--a traditional liberal education and top-notch career preparation.

"We stand ready to teach you. We stand ready to help you," said DeNardis as he wished them the best for a great year.

LEARNING BY DOING--The university welcomed 31 middle school students to campus this summer in conjunction with the Connecticut Pre-Engineering Program (CPEP), a Hartford-based non-profit organization. The five-week program, which ran from June 29 through July 31, included classes in chemistry, physics, mathematics, computer and English guidance as well as field trips. The university is one of five CPEP sites throughout the state.

Elections/Media are Focus of Ethics Forum

When her daughter asked her whether all fairy tales began with "Once Upon a Time," Ruth Brennan said that wasn't always the case. "Sometimes they start with 'When I get elected...'" quipped Brennan, director of the EMBA Program who recounted the dialogue with her daughter as part of her opening comments in the recent Ethics in the Workplace symposium entitled, appropriately enough, "Ethics and Elections: The Role of the Media."

The October 14 symposium, held just days after the televised vice presidential debates and shortly before the second scheduled Presidential one, made for a lively evening. Brennan's comments were followed by commentaries by UNH faculty Jerry Allen, chair of the Department of Communication and Marketing; Brennan; James W. Dull, professor of political science and UNH President Lawrence J. DeNardis, who is also a professor of political science and former state senator and congressman. Each touched on different aspects of the way the media impacts the electoral process.

Kendall commented on the interaction among the media, candidates and the general public. While candidates may have difficulty telling the truth, particularly about each other, she says the public expects ample, clear information from the media. She also spoke about the need to separate truth from fiction in political advertising campaigns.

News Anchor Terzi addressed the difficulty the media has reporting timely information in a news program that may have five commercial breaks as well as sports and weather reporting. He notes too that politicians have become adept at using their television persona to their advantage. The media has an obligation to look deeper into the issues, to ask questions and find out what is the truth and then report it to the public.

Other topics of interest focused on the newspaper practice of "pack" reporting and the general indifference of the American people toward their government. President DeNardis underscored the decline of the efficacy of the political parties over the last 20 years and the rise of special interest groups and Political Action Committees which influence candidates with their financial clout. Addressing the rise of divided government since 1956, he says that split parties have caused conflict and rancor, giving the media an arena in which to operate.

A lively question and answer period which included questions on media coverage of independent candidates, why candidates are not often asked to comment on "real issues," and whether the public knows more about political candidates than they did 100 years ago, concluded the symposium. A reception followed in Dodds Hall's Art Gallery.

Sharing views on ethical issues facing the media during election coverage were outside speakers Kathleen E. Kendall and Al Terzi.

but a few of several insights she and her fellow panelists and commentators shared with close to 100 people who filled Dodds Hall that evening.

After a brief introduction by Philosophy Professor Joel Marks, two panelists shared their views—Kathleen E. Kendall, associate professor of communication at the State University of New York at Albany and chair of the Political Communication Division of the International Communication Association; and Al Terzi, co-anchor of WTNH-TV Channel 8's Action News. Their presentations were

Ibsen Appointed VP for University Advancement

Donald J. Ibsen, retired president of the Instrument Division of Dresser Industries, Inc., was appointed to the newly created position of vice-president for university advancement, effective September 1. His responsibilities will be to direct the functions of the Development, Alumni Relations and Public Relations offices.

Ibsen, who holds a B.S. from Yale University and an M.B.A. from the University of Bridgeport, joined Dresser Industries in 1962 and held increasingly responsible management positions over the next 13 years. In 1975, he was named manager of manufacturing; he became vice-president of the company's 12-plant instrument division in 1983, taking early retirement in April 1991 after a successful career.

A member of the board of directors of the Connecticut Business and Industry Association and the advisory board of Connecticut National Bank, Ibsen's past board affiliations have included Goodwill Industries, the YMCA, Junior Achievement and the Southern Connecticut Manufacturers Association.

He also has been an active fundraiser, having served as chairman of the board of the United Way of Eastern Fairfield County, and as a board member of the Klingberg Family Centers in New Britain.

"We are extremely fortunate to have found a leader of Don Ibsen's calibre to join our executive ranks at this important juncture—when we are preparing for a major fund-raising campaign," says President Lawrence J. DeNardis.

University welcomes new faculty

The university welcomed several new faculty members at the start of the academic year. They are:

School of Arts & Sciences

Anne Magee Dichele was appointed assistant professor of education. Dichele was an assistant professor at the University of Bridgeport. She holds an Ed.M. and a master's in reading education, Harvard Graduate School of Education, and a B.S. in elementary education, Northeastern University.

Valeria Heckman was appointed assistant professor of physics. She served as an adjunct faculty member in physics at the University of Hartford and as a visiting assistant professor of physics at Connecticut College. She holds a B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. in physics, University of Connecticut.

Jeanne Maloney was appointed associate professor of dental hygiene/biology. Maloney was division director and associate professor, Fones School of Dental Hygiene, University of Bridgeport. She holds a B.S. and M.S. in dental hygiene education, University of Missouri-Kansas City.

Michael J. Rossi was named assistant professor of biology/environmental science. He was a postdoctoral fellow with Nasser Chegini, Ph.D., Principal Investigator, Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology, University of Florida, and a teaching assistant, University of Kentucky. He earned a B.S. in biology, Xavier University, and a Ph.D. in biology, University of Kentucky.

Louise M. Soares was named director of education programs and professor of education. She was director, internship and residency programs, and professor of educational psychology, University of Bridgeport. She holds a bachelor of music and master of fine arts, Boston University, and a Ph.D. in educational psychology, University of Illinois.

School of Business

John Coulter was named assistant professor of accounting. He served as a teaching assistant and lecturer at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. He holds a B.B.A., and an M.S. in accounting, University of Massachusetts.

John Teall was named associate professor of economics and finance. He was an assistant professor of finance at the University of Bridgeport. He holds a B.S. in economics and business administration, Towson State University, an M.B.A., Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and an M.Phil. and Ph.D. in finance, NYU.

Linda A. Tetrault was named assistant professor of management. Tetrault was an assistant professor, Department of Management, James Madison University. She holds a B.S. in human resource management/industrial relations, California State University, Chico, and an M.S. and Ph.D. in management/organizational psychology, University of Miami.

School of Engineering

Samuel Bogan was named assistant professor of mechanical engineering. He was a teaching assistant and Ph.D. candidate at Boston University, College of Engineering, where he also earned a B.S. and M.S. in aerospace engineering.

Agamemnon D. Koutsospyros was named assistant professor of civil and environmental engineering. He was an assistant professor, Pratt Institute. He holds a B.S./M.S. in chemical engineering, National Technical University of Athens, Greece, an M.S. in civil engineering, Polytechnic Institute of New York, and a Ph.D. in civil engineering, Polytechnic University.

School of HRTA

Sophia Anne Rolle was appointed assistant professor of hotel/restaurant tourism. Rolle was affiliated with Iowa State University Memorial Union. She holds a B.S. in business management, Saint Augustine's College, Raleigh, NC, and an M.S. in hotel, restaurant and institution management and a Ph.D. in family and consumer sciences education, Iowa State University.

Visiting Professor Horst Henschel taught a graduate course about the economic evolution of Eastern Europe this summer.

German Professor Visits UNH

This summer UNH students were afforded an inside look at the changes in eastern Europe thanks to Visiting Professor Horst Henschel. A distinguished economist affiliated with the University of Leipzig, Henschel taught a graduate course entitled "The Economic Evolution of Eastern Europe." The course covered such topics as technological developments, changes in the production and distribution processes and pricing policies.

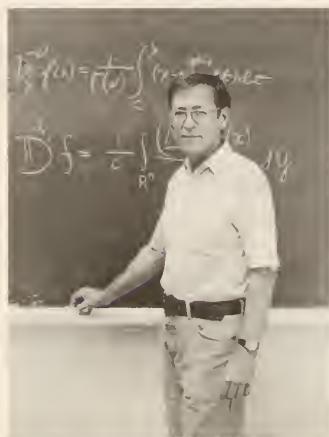

Henschel, whose credentials have also included serving as vice director for research on the national economy, says that the change to a market-driven economy, while welcomed by many Europeans, also brought problems that people had not anticipated. While people saw the advantages of the Western system in terms of the variety of goods that were available, they "were very astonished at what the problems are," he says. As part of the evolutionary process, rents and unemployment have increased and workers have found they no longer have the high level of social security they had been accustomed to under the old system. "People are comparing what is good in the new system and the old system. They want both, and that is not possible."

UNH Hosts Russian Fulbright Scholar

For Fulbright Scholar Stefan Samko the opportunity to come to the United States and pursue research and teaching opportunities at the University of New Haven was something he couldn't resist. Samko who is currently residing in New Haven thanks to the hospitality of UNH professor Richard Morrison, hails from Rostov-on-Don which is located in the southern part of Russia near the Black Sea. As professor and chair of the Department of Mathematics at Rostov State University, he is truly a mathematician at heart and says he is looking forward to meeting his U.S. counterparts so he can learn from and share with them.

"Any two people think in different ways at any time...joint work gives more results," says Samko, adding, "I hope to have good results here."

While at UNH Samko will devote his first semester to research activities focusing on fractional calculus in analysis and mathematical physics, his speciality areas. Some years ago he collaborated on a text entitled Theory and Application of Fractional Calculus. The work turned out to be a two-year project which was published in Russian and is due for publication in the U.S. by Gordon and Bridge Science Publishers.

Russian Fulbright Scholar Stefan Samko plans to pursue research interests as part of his one-year stay at UNH.

Much of his second semester may be spent in the classroom teaching. Samko, who was born and educated in Russia, says he is looking forward to working with American students, whom he describes as having a "much freer" outlook than their Russian counterparts because, in Russia, studies (and students) have been more strictly regulated, though that is changing.

For Samko, the 10-month stay at UNH, which was arranged through the Council for International Exchange of Scholars in Washington, D.C., is the first time he has been to America. Comparing Rostov with New Haven, he says the former is smaller geographically but is much more densely populated. And like many out-of-towners he jokes about transportation, or rather the lack thereof. "In the U.S., everyone must have a car," he says. Nevertheless, he does plan to visit mathematicians throughout the U.S. during his stay.

And while he has been here only a relatively short time, he has already begun to show traces of Yankee humor. Asked how the breakup of the Soviet Union impacted on education or travel, Samko quipped, "Our students have an expression, 'Ask something easier.'"

Israeli Students Enjoy U.S. Studies

As a practicing engineer in Israel, Yoram Grebler knew he had made considerable strides during the course of his career with the Israel Aircraft Industry. His most recent post, as project supervisor within the firm's Electronic Division, afforded him varied responsibilities. But Grebler also knew that he was rapidly reaching the top of the career ladder, unless he went back to college for a four-year degree.

Currently, Grebler is one of approximately 70 Israeli students who are pursuing a variety of engineering degrees at UNH. The students, who have completed core courses in the humanities at the Biotechnical Institute of Tel Aviv, are enrolled in upper-level engineering courses at UNH, where they are combining classroom learning with laboratory experience. Provost Jim Uebelacker describes the relationship as a win-win situation. "In general, the Israeli students are very good students who contribute to the academic quality of the programs being offered," he says. And as international students, they add to the university's globalization efforts. In turn, the Israeli students can earn an American engineering degree within a compressed period of time while also learning about a new culture.

Students Daniel Cohen and Guy Shocet, seniors in electrical engineering, find the program demanding. They take five to six courses per semester and find themselves "just studying all the time." They describe their first two weeks here as "a culture shock" and note differences in everything from class size--UNH classes are considerably smaller than back home--to teaching styles. They note, too, that competition among their fellow Israeli students is great. "Getting high marks is very important to us," says Cohen.

Grebler says his employers urged him to complete his studies and are holding a position for him. In addition to the time factor, he says he was looking for a program that would give him an opportunity to study new material in depth. And like several of the students who are pursuing their degrees here, he says that, with his new knowledge and exposure to American language and customs, career opportunities will be wide open. Says Grebler, "I've been dreaming about completing my studies for the past 10 years. I finally have a chance to do it."

AROUND CAMPUS

This information was written by the staff of the Public Relations Department.

Provost's Office

Loretta K. Smith, director of the Center for Learning Resources, is serving in her second year as chairman of the Orange Public Library Commission. The commission recently inaugurated a Friends of the Library group and has begun planning for an expansion of the library's physical plant.

School of Arts & Sciences

Caroline Dinegar, professor of political science, participated in the Brown University Scholars Program on the future of U.S. Foreign Policy. Dinegar hosted two public meetings held at the Wallingford Library on October 7 and 21 and will host two others on November 4 and 18. The seminars address the future of U.S. foreign policy; the CIS and the New Russia; the Middle East and the European Community. The program is sponsored by OPTIONS, and is funded by a grant from the Connecticut Humanities Council.

Ed Todd, associate professor of history, delivered a paper entitled, "Instructional Literature: Constructing Electric Power Systems in Germany, 1910-1930," in a session on Legitimizing High-Tech at the meeting of the Society for the History of Technology in Uppsala, Sweden, held August 16-20.

David E.E. Sloane, professor of English, published his fifth book, Sister Carrie: Theodore Dreiser's Sociolocial Tragedy (MacMillan-Twayne, New York), in July. The book, a 150-page study of the sources, background and meaning of Sister Carrie, which begins the twentieth-century realistic novel tradition. He also completed Volume 22 of "Country Dance and Song," the national research publication of the Country Dance and Song Society of America. Sloane, who is the editor of the publication, also published an article/book review in that issue.

SPECIAL HONORS--President Lawrence J. DeNardis pauses for a moment after Convocation to congratulate (l.) Tara L'Heureux-Barratt, assistant professor of psychology, and Pauline M. Schwartz, who received the University Award for Distinguished Teaching and the University Adjunct Award, respectively. Paul Bienkowski, technical assistant, Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering, and Maureen Chase, Central Duplicating, received the Outstanding Staff Member and Outstanding Service Member awards, respectively.

President Lawrence J. DeNardis, spoke on "Broadening Our Horizons," as the guest speaker of the Warwick Rhode Island Chamber of Commerce "Solution Series" luncheon held this summer.

Douglas Robillard, professor of English, was one of 12 specialists who contributed to Savage Eye (publisher--The Kent State University Press), a ground-breaking study examining Herman Melville's interest in the many facets of the visual arts.

School of Business

Jerry Allen, professor and chair of the Department of Communication and Marketing, was appointed executive secretary of the Eastern Communication Association. The Association, the oldest of the four regional communication associations, covers the geographical area from Washington, D.C. to the Canadian border, and from the western border of Ohio eastward. Allen will be responsible for the organization's business affairs, publishing a newsletter, ECA News, and a national research journal, Communication Quarterly, and planning conferences.

Steven D. Goldberg, assistant professor of management, presented a paper entitled, "Self-Confidence and Dominance/Control: An Alternative Perspective for Succession in Family Business," at the annual conference of The Family Farm Firm Institute held in Boston from September 30 to October 3. Goldberg won the Institute's Outstanding Contribution to the Field Award for Research.

Goldberg also participated in the annual meeting of the Academy of Management held in Las Vegas this August, at which time he addressed "Succession from the Other End of the Telescope." Joining him was Judith Neal, associate professor of management, who presented "High Performance Work Systems: An Analysis of Strategies for Improving Quality and Competitiveness."

School of Engineering

Ross M. Lanius, Jr., professor of civil engineering, was appointed news correspondent, structural division, for the American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE) News. In this position, he reports on activities of the division's 12 administrative and technical committees.

Alex Sommers, professor of industrial engineering, published an abstract of a paper entitled "State-Assisted Centers for Technical Assistance to Manufacturing," accepted for presentation at the Production and Operations Management Society's annual meeting in Florida in October.

Ismail I. Orabi, associate professor of mechanical engineering, chaired a session at the fourth conference on Nonlinear Vibrations, Stability and Dynamics of Structures and Mechanisms held at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in Blacksburg, VA, from June 7 to 11. He also presented a paper entitled, "Response of a Sliding Rigid Structure under Horizontal-Vertical Earthquake Excitations."

School of Hotel, Restaurant & Tourism Administration

Vincent Marottoli, an adjunct instructor in the Department of Hotel and Restaurant Management, recently returned from guiding two tours through the Bordeaux wine region in France. For the past 11 years, he has organized and led these tours of the major wine regions of France. Next year, he plans to visit Provence/Languedoc.

Rosanne Paluszewski, a junior pursuing a degree in hotel and restaurant management, was awarded a $1,500 scholarship from the Network of Executive Women in Hospitality, Inc., Greater New York.

School of Public Safety & Professional Studies

David A. Maxwell, professor of criminal justice and coordinator of the security management program, was honored by the Connecticut Chapter of the American Society for Industrial Security on June 5 for his many years "of outstanding service and dedication to the Chapter, fostering professional growth and development of the security industry."

EXECUTIVE MBA OPEN HOUSE—"An Open House is the best way to get to know the Executive MBA Program, short of enrolling in it," said Ruth Brennan, EMBA director. An EMBA Open House, set for December 9 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Echlin Hall, will have current EMBA students, alumni and faculty on hand to talk about their experiences with the Executive MBA and answer questions prospective students might have.

The program is a theory plus hands-on alternative to a traditional MBA for middle and upper-level managers who have always wanted a graduate management degree but have never had the time to go back and earn one. "We call it the 'I Have a Life Executive MBA' because we designed it so that it would not interfere with an executive's lifestyle or career. Let our alumni tell you how it works," said Brennan.

Gerald Robin, professor of criminal justice, received rave reviews for his book Violent Crime and Gun Control, in a recent issue of P.I. Magazine. Reviewer Chuck Klein noted "this text might become the bible on the subject."

Marvin K. Peterson Library

Hanko Dobi, university librarian, was elected chair of the Greater New Haven Academic Library Consortium in July. She will serve a one-year term. Dobi was also part of a team of evaluators who visited the Bridgeport Engineering Institute to review the institution's application to the Board of Governors for licensure to offer a M.S. program in management of technology.

Mary Fiorelli, reference librarian, Southeastern Connecticut branch, was elected to a two-year term as Region VI representative to the Connecticut Library Association's Executive Board.

Admissions & Financial Aid

Scott Farber, director of transfer admissions, represented the university at the annual conference of the New England Transfer Articulation Association held in New Hampshire this May. Farber currently serves as a member of the association's executive board, a position he has held for the past three years.

Student Services

Patricia S. Christiano joined the Office of Residential Life as assistant director. Previously, she held a similar post at Fairfield University. She holds a M.S. in higher education administration from Syracuse University and a B.A. in Psychology from St. Bonaventure.

Dear Alumni,

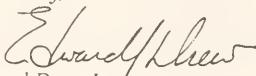

As an alumnus of UNH, I am proud and happy to see the amount of favorable press coverage afforded the university recently. Such press coverage has featured President Larry DeNardis and the administration, campus beautification plans, accreditation for new degree programs, as well as a focus on the university's dedicated faculty and staff. Coverage has also included the outstanding sports programs offered by UNH. In fact, I have just read yet another newspaper article highlighting the superb performance by the UNH "Chargers" football team this year, which, as of this writing, has a 7-0 record. The season began with a thrilling victory against UConn, a game which I enjoyed with my family and will never forget.

It is clear that the publicity bestowed upon UNH has been earned through hard work and a commitment by the administration, faculty, staff, students and alumni. Consistent with past practice, UNH continues to make progress and has developed into a university which is attractive to prospective students.

The recently elected UNH Alumni Board and Council is committed to providing ongoing support for the continued growth and development of the university and our fellow alumni. The Alumni Council has already met to discuss the various ways in which we can enhance relations and better serve our alumni and university. Areas of focus include the establishment of Alumni Clubs, as well as facilitating communication between the alumni and the UNH Career Development Office. The Career Development staff is committed to assisting UNH alumni with job search and employment strategies and the Alumni Council is currently working with this office to identify ways in which we can help them assist our alumni.

The Alumni Council will continue to work hard to identify ways in which we can better serve the alumni and the university now and in the future. The council is receptive to recommendations from our fellow alumni and in an effort to carry out our mission, we would like to hear from you. Your ideas and suggestions are important to us. For those of you interested in either serving on the Alumni Council or assisting in the process of establishing Alumni Clubs in your region, please let us know.

Yours truly,

Edward Drew, Jr.
President, Alumni Association

Hershey/Frey Fund Established

Recently, John A Frey '42, alumnus and long standing member of the Board of Governors, paid a visit to campus to bring to fruition an idea that he and his wife had discussed for some time--the establishment of a scholarship fund dedicated to improving the lives of people in the Naugatuck Valley area. Today, that idea has become a reality with the establishment of the Hershey/Frey Scholarship Fund. Initiated with a gift of $65,000, the fund shares the names of two prominent businessmen, Paul H. Hershey, founder of Hershey Metal Products Company in Ansonia in 1920, and Frey, his nephew, who also serves as president and chief executive officer of the corporation. The fund will directly aid students from the towns of Derby, Ansonia and Seymour who are enrolled either full- or part-time in any program of the university at the graduate or undergraduate level.

UNH Calling...

The university's annual phonathon is currently underway. This year, all gifts of $100 or more will be recognized with a personalized brick to be placed in the Alumni and Friends Walkway to Success as part of the Greening of UNH campaign. All alumni will have the opportunity to place a brick in the Walkway to Success when called by phoners. To date more than 200 alumni and friends have already participated in the project as part of UNH's overall campus beautification plan.

The phonathon, which is being conducted externally due to the rapid growth of the alumni population (just over 25,000 members), will run through Thanksgiving.

Greening Update

The university wishes to recognize the following contributors who have shown their support for the Greening of UNH Campaign.

New Haven Opens Season with UConn Win

Unbelievable.

That word passed through the home stands, echoed off the press box walls and was whispered throughout the University of Connecticut locker room. Much like little Virginia's belief in Santa Claus, five bus loads of Charger fans believed in the Blue and Gold. And that faith was rewarded with a 14-13 victory over the University of Connecticut before a crowd of more than 7,000 people.

Fans and reporters alike said that UNH did not have a chance of staying with the Huskies never mind beat them. In fact, one reporter wrote that the Chargers had as much chance of winning as Farmer Brown's prize pig sprouting wings and flying. That article became the rallying cry for players and fans alike. Signs and chants exclaiming "Pigs Can Fly" were seen and heard by the multitudes.

Those chants were hushed when UConn scored a touchdown on its first possession, pushing the Chargers into a 7-0 hole. As the game progressed, the New Haven sideline and bleachers became more animated with each offensive drive and defensive stop. The players began to believe more and more, especially when they headed into the locker room trailing by a meager, 7-0 margin.

The Huskies ebbed the tides of momentum with a touchdown drive on its first possession of the second half, increasing the lead to 13-0. On the ensuing kickoff, John Raba ran the kickoff back 60 plus yards, giving UNH the ball on the UConn 23-yard line. When AJ Livingston ran 19-yards for a touchdown three plays later, the Huskies found the tides changing.

The Chargers defense kept UConn at bay for the rest of the game, stopping the Huskies several times on just three plays. Finally, New Haven broke through with a 20-yard touchdown pass from Ken Suhl to Raba, tying the game at 13-13. Peter Capuano connected on the extra point, giving UNH its first lead of the game, 14-13.

The offense kept the ball for over 11 minutes of the fourth quarter, denying the Huskies an opportunity to win the game. With less than three minutes left, UConn received its final chance when it took control at its own 33 yard line. Two plays later, the Huskies hopes were dashed when James Bailey intercepted a pass. With no time outs remaining, UConn watched helplessly as New Haven erased the final two minutes with running plays.

The win was deemed one of the biggest in the Chargers 20-year history. But the team realizes that it must continue to win in order for the UConn game to hold meaning. That could be a tall order with UNH playing its most difficult schedule in years. But if you have any doubts, just look up in the sky and ask one of those flying pigs.

Sports Roundup

Soccer

The soccer team is clearly off to a good start, boasting a 5-0 record. Abou Cissokho has become one of the university's all-time leading scorers, currently tied for sixth with 82 points (36 goals, 10 assists). Teammate Luigi Cappetta has already netted two goals in the first 10 games.

Steve MacKenzie has scored one goal and assisted on four others. He will be counted upon by his teammates to score more this season.

Seniors John Camara and Moussa Ndiaye, who will play both midfield and defense this season, can also produce offense. Camara has already found the back of the net twice while Ndiaye has set up a goal from his defensive position.

Carlos Silva will be juggled as a midfielder and a defender. He has scored two goals in 10 games.

Junior Aggi Koriositis and sophomore Michael Raccua will also play a significant role. Koriositis has already scored his first goal of the year, helping the Chargers post a 4-0 win over American International. Raccua likes to stay back which complements the Chargers defense.

Lou Raba continues to mind the Chargers' nets, already posting three shutouts in his first 10 games. Raba was the only goalkeeper on last year's team but has help in the person of Victor Mancini, who has already seen action in three games.

Volleyball

Last year, the Charger volleyball team opened with 13 straight wins which helped vault the team into its fourth straight NCAA tournament. New Haven has surpassed that start in 1992, winning its first 19 matches as it tries for its ninth NCAA tournament berth in the last 10 years.

The team is lead by Co-captains Vincia St. Jean and Semaj Douglas, both veterans. St. Jean currently ranks third in kills (97) and blocks (28), trailing Douglas (120 kills, 38 blocks) and senior Amy Stufflebeam (105 kills, 52 blocks).

Without question, the success of the hitters can be drawn to the team's senior setter Marina Contreras. The setter has averaged over 30 assists per match and has collected over 475 assists through the first 19 matches. She ranks second in service aces with 32 this season after leading the team in that same category last year.

New Haven has also enjoyed the play of newcomer Elise Hutchinson and sophomore Richelle Hewins. To date, Hewins has recorded 90 kills and 103 digs while Hutchinson has accumulated 114 kills with 147 digs.

The Chargers have strong support in sophomore Cheryl Sehon and freshman Natasha Varn and Lakisha Platt. Sehon will serve a dual role, both as a reserve and a spot starter. Platt has outstanding hitting and leaping ability, both of which will bolster the Chargers offense and defense. Varn will contribute mostly as a reserve.

Football

The Chargers have opened the 1992 season with six straight victories, including a 14-13 decision over the University of Connecticut, a record-setting 80-26 win over Virginia Union and a 66-7 victory over American International. New Haven set school records in the Virginia Union victory, including most total yards (880 yards) and most points (80) in a game.

Tailback A.J. Livingston, fullback John Raba and quarterback Ken Suhl join Roger Graham in the backfield, giving the Chargers one of the top rushing attacks in the nation. After six games, the team is first in the nation in rushing offense (393.0 yards per game) which has helped it to the nation's top spot in total offense (631.7 yards per game).

Suhl probably frustrates the opposition more than any other player. He ranked second last season with 527 yards and passed for an additional 1,775 yards. He was responsible for 24 of the team's 44 touchdowns, rushing for seven and throwing for 17. So far, Suhl has rushed for over 350 yards and passed for over 1300 yards, placing him fourth in the nation in total offense (283.5 yards per game).

Seniors Scott Emmert and Brian Houston anchor the offensive line which has helped gain over 3,500 yards in six games. Juniors Peter Indresano, Tom Dempsey and sophomore Frank Sheehan round out the line.

Meanwhile, defense has kept the opposition guessing. Juniors George Byrd and Bill Covert are the top two tacklers with 43 and 40 stops, respectively. Sophomore Joe Newsome ranks third on the team with 39 tackles and has one of the team's 12 sacks. James Bailey is the only senior on defense.

The Chargers are currently ranked sixth in the nation--the highest ranking in the school's 20-year history.

WINNING TEAM--More than 120 people participated in the university's Charger Golf Open held at the Whitney Farms Country Club in Monroe on June 25. The event raised $6,000 which will be used to support UNH's athletic programs. Plans are already underway for next year's tournament which is tentatively scheduled to be held on Thursday, June 24 at Whitney Farms. Pictured above are members of the winning "low score" team (l-r): Sal Bocuzzi, Al Nicholson, Rick and Dick Gessick.

To Our Friends,

The highlights of the 1991-92 academic year offer clear evidence of your generosity and commitment to the University of New Haven. The support of such valued alumni and friends has made possible many changes this past year.

We have witnessed the completion of our new Admissions Building located in the heart of the main campus and new academic initiatives both on the international and home fronts. We have also seen the enhancement of our Students First philosophy by tending to students' educational and comfort needs. To that end, there was the establishment of two new endowed scholarships: the Hersey/Frey Fund, designed primarily to assist students from the Naugatuck Valley, and the Forensic Scholarship Fund, and a major upgrading of the Freshman Residence Hall.

A new program entitled Substance Prevention, Awareness, Responsibility, and Knowledge, known as SPARK, was established on campus as a result of an award from the federal Department of Education's Fund for Improvement of Postsecondary Education. The two-year program, staffed by two experienced counselors who share the directorship, addresses the problem of drug and alcohol abuse on campus through education and counseling.

Several faculty were awarded research grants during the year, among them Erik Rosenthal, professor of mathematics, who will continue his research on the implementation and analysis of inference techniques for classical and multiple-valued logics; and Bijan Karimi, associate professor of electrical and computer engineering, who will research the design and implementation of an adaptive, highly integrated computer VISION system using relaxation and neural networks methods. Robert Gaenslen, acting dean of the new School for Public Safety and Professional Studies and professor of forensic science, will conduct a national survey of medical, governmental and other agencies and facilities to determine their methods of handling sexual assault victims, cases and evidence.

Finally, the Alumni Scholarship Ball, always a success, realized the largest dollar amount in its nine-year history, enabling the university to offer scholarship assistance to four students at the April gala and the President's Circle Dinner in March brought 100 distinguished guests to the campus.

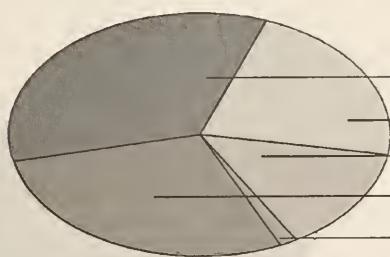

Thanks to the dedicated and loyal support of our alumni and friends, these are but some of the many ways the university has flourished.

Know that your generosity in the years ahead will ensure our continued success in shaping the future of our university, and more importantly, that of our students. Speaking for the entire university community, thank you.

Yours truly,

Lawrence J. DeNardis
President

Russian Chorus Kicks-Off Performing Arts Series

It was a lesson in cultural diversity set to music. This October, the Yale Russian Chorus gave a rousing performance on campus as the opening presentation of the Fall 1992 Performing Arts Series. More than 100 people turned out for the event, which featured religious and secular music from Russia, Georgia, Latvia, the Ukraine and other republics of the former Soviet Union as well as Slavic areas of Eastern Europe.

In welcoming members of the audience, President Lawrence J. DeNardis recognized the 12 Siberian students from the Kuzbass region of Russia who arrived this September to begin their studies at UNH.

Next in the series of scheduled performances was an afternoon presentation by a string quartet from Orchestra New England held Sunday, November 15, in the Student Center Lounge. Slated is a return engagement of the United States Coast Guard Band, which will perform a medley of classical and popular holiday music on Sunday, December 13, at 2:30 p.m. in the North Campus Athletic Complex.
